

Michael Chekhov International Workshop

Psychological Gesture: The Character's Spine

10 - 14 May 2017

Rome, Italy

with

Ulrich Meyer-Horsch,

Chekhov International School Hamburg, Germany

As an accurate observer of the 'creative process', Michael Chekhov investigated the interplay between psyche and body, between 'intangible and tangible'.

He found simple and clear tools for the actor, based on the powers of Concentration, Imagination, Gesture, Imaginary Centers and Atmosphere. Applied in practice, these techniques enable the actor to discover his/her character in a relatively short period of time. They open doors to the artist's creative individuality.

The Psychological Gesture, probably Chekhov's most famous acting tool, is a physical movement that awakens the actor's inner life. It serves as a key to the essential features of his/her character, and enables the actor to express and embody the character's objectives in a new way. The Psychological Gesture stirs the will power, gives it a definite direction, awakens feelings, and provides a condensed version of the character.

Please read Anton Chekhov's play "Uncle Vanja", select a character and learn a short monologue of this character.

Michael Chekhov (1891–1955)

A nephew of playwright Anton Chekhov, he was widely recognized as one of the greatest actors of the 20th century. Michael Chekhov had a great talent for characterization and was a keen observer of the creative process.

At the Moscow Art Theatre the collaboration between K.Stanislavsky, E.Vachtangov, V.Meyerhold and Michael Chekhov led to a theatre that was bold, expressive and imaginative. In their work they searched for objective principles that would lead to inspired acting. This investigation led Chekhov to develop his own psycho-physical acting technique, incorporating body and imagination.

After leaving Russia in 1928 Chekhov spent eleven years in Europe - acting, directing and teaching. He worked with Max Reinhardt in Berlin and Vienna, founded his own company in Paris and directed for the theatres in Riga and the Baltic countries. In 1936 he opened the Chekhov Theatre Studio in Dartington Hall, England.

In 1939 he moved to the United States, where he taught in both New York and in Hollywood.
